(O) ORGANIC viticulture is when the grower concentrates more on growing a healthy vine, by developing nutritious soil and a balanced ecosystem without the use of artificial fertilizers and pesticides.

(B) BIODYNAMIC viticulture takes it a step further and takes in to account the spiritual side of things, including running the vineyard and winery by lunar cycles. The grower sees his vineyard as a single living entity, promotes biodiversity and believes there are underlying natural forces governing all the stages of growth and production. A lot of biodynamic producers use only natural yeast, minimal or no sulphur and sometimes no filtration.

(N) NATURAL WINE has no true definable measure but the order of the day is absolute minimal intervention. The organically or biodynamically grown grapes travel from the vineyard to the winery, are crushed, gently put in a vat, fermentation takes place naturally, the wine settles and is then bottled. A return to how wines historically used to be made.

ORGANIC, BIODYNAMIC AND NATURAL WINES

We are big fans of this relatively new movement within the wine industry, so have decided to make a feature out of these sometimes odd, occasionally hard to understand but frequently delicious vinous drops. In this day and age everyone understands what is meant by organic, but biodynamic viticulture takes things a few steps further. Vineyard practices are governed by lunar cycles, the grower believes the vineyard has a soul that needs nourishing. The winemaker eschews the use of laboratory prepared yeasts in favour of ones that occur naturally in the vineyard, the wines often have no fining or filtration and an absolute minimal use (if any) of sulphur at any stage of the wine making process.

The term 'natural wine' has no true definable measure but the order of the day is absolute minimal intervention. The organically or bio-dynamically grown grapes travel from the vineyard to the winery, are crushed, gently put in a vat, fermentation takes place naturally, the wine settles and is then bottled. This is a return to how wines historically used to be made. We believe that the resulting products offer the purest expression of the grape variety, soil type and climatic conditions of the vintage.

To help find them in the Curlew wine list we have marked (O) for Organic and (B) for Biodynamic. Please see below for a selection of by the glass offerings we have carefully selected (all 175ml).

ORANGE WINES

These are white wines which are made like reds, in other words, the grape skins are in contact with the juice for a long period of time, yielding amazing amber coloured wines. And they taste so different! Thrillingly alive and nourishing with a texture that you could almost sink your teeth into. Best when decanted into a carafe not served too cold, the wines are always changing, giving something different in every glass. Can be drunk with boldly flavoured dishes and soft cheeses.

PHEASANT'S TEARS, CHINURI, GEORGIA 2013 (O)(N)	42.00
---	-------

DE MARTINO VIEJAS TINAJAS MUSCAT, ITATA VALLEY, CHILE 2014 (O) (N)	39.00
---	-------

This wine rescues an old tradition deeply rooted in rural Chile: winemaking using large earthenware jars called "Tinajas". The wine is aged on its skins for 6 months in Tinajas and is bottled unfiltered and unfinned and with very low sulphur additions. Complex and intense with classic Muscat notes of grapes alongside aromas of preserved lemons, herbs and earth. The palate reflects the nose with a touch of tannin from the skins and wonderful minerality and drinkability.

HENRI BOURGEOIS SANCERRE 'LE M.D.' LOIRE, FRANCE 2015

Le M.D is a very steep south-east facing slope in Chavignol – M.D. stands for Mont Damné, literally "damned slope" because it is so difficult to harvest. Since the 11th century, noblemen would outbid one another just to possess a small parcel. During the harvest only the ripest grapes are hand-picked and carefully transported to the cellar where they are gently pressed to release their aromas.

ST JOSEPH ROUGE, DOMAINE DE MIQUETTES (O) RHÔNE VALLEY, FRANCE 2014			62.00
Fermented in Tinajas (clay jars) that are buried in the ground as is found in Georgia, the wine is fermented using wild yeast and is bottled unfiltered, unfinned and with no added sulphur. It's masculine with powerful fruit such as plum skins and wild blackberries. The palate has concentrated fruit and stones, olives, and a bucketful of black pepper. This is not at all lean, but rather potent and the tannin structure is powerful while also being supple.
CHATEAUNEUF-DU-PAPE 'CUVEE DES SOMMELIERS', JACQUES MESTRE RHONE, FRANCE 2010			53.00
A very traditional style of Chateauneuf, stored in huge oak foudres and bottled to order. Pale in colour but huge in style, game and leather aromas, soft tannins and incredible length.
MALBEC SUSANA BALBO, ARGENTINA 2013			43.00
Deep violet colour with explosive aromas of blackberry, black cherry and violets framed by hints of oak and mint. The wonderful aromas are mirrored on the palate and are joined by ripe plum fruit and a hint of toasty vanilla, bittersweet chocolate and a sprig of mint on the finish. This is a ripe, forward style of Malbec, with a little Cabernet adding structure, reigning in the fruit and focusing it into a long, elegant finish.
INKAWU PINOTAGE, STELLENBOSCH, SOUTH AFRICA 2015			39.50
A great example of a unique variety. Lovely ripe flavours of banana and lavender. Red berry characters are prominent and well supported by classic oak aromas. The mouth feel is rich and lively with different dimensions of flavours.

(O) ORGANIC viticulture is when the grower concentrates more on growing a healthy vine, by developing nutritious soil and a balanced ecosystem without the use of artificial fertilizers and pesticides.

(B) BIODYNAMIC viticulture takes it a step further and takes in to account the spiritual side of things, including running the vineyard and winery by lunar cycles. The grower sees his vineyard as a single living entity, promotes biodiversity and believes there are underlying natural forces governing all the stages of growth and production. A lot of biodynamic producers use only natural yeast, minimal or no sulphur and sometimes no filtration.

(N) NATURAL WINE has no true definable measure but the order of the day is absolute minimal intervention. The organically or biodynamically grown grapes travel from the vineyard to the winery, are crushed, gently put in a vat, fermentation takes place naturally, the wine settles and is then bottled. A return to how wines historically used to be made.

CLASSIC GRAPES AND FINE WINE

750ml Bottle

CHATEAU MUSAR (O)

LEBANON 2006

59.00

Cult wine from the Bekaa Valley in Lebanon. Cabernet, Cinsalt and Grenache, blended after 3 years of maturation in Nevers oak barrels. A further 3-4 years ageing in bottle before release completes the process. There has been a vintage every year from this estate since 1930. The 2007 vintage is a deep crimson with an intense and complex nose of spicy red fruits with a hint of cedar. Generous red and black fruits follow through to the palate combine with Christmas cake spices, figs, dates and stewed plums. Good acidity, silky tannins with a rich fruited palate end with a long finish.

SEGLA MARGAUX

BORDEAUX, FRANCE 2008

75.00

The second wine of Rauzan – Segla. A fragrant nose of violets and roses mixed with ripe cassis. Very supple and concentrated on the palate. Firm tannins. Quite savoury on the finish.

COTE ROTIE, DOMAINE DE MONTEILLET

BRUNELLO DI MONTALCINO (B)(N)

105.00

PIAN DELL ORINO, ITALY 2010

Made from certified organic Sangiovese Grosso, this is a powerful, muscular wine endowed with plenty of dark fruit, spice, tar and the depth and smokey complexity of French oak. The balance here is exceptional, as everything is in the right place. Firm yet silky tannins frame the finish with a classy elegance that is hard to find in Montalcino.
