(O) ORGANIC viticulture is when the grower concentrates more on growing a healthy vine, by developing nutritious soil and a balanced ecosystem without the use of artificial fertilizers and pesticides.

(B) BIODYNAMIC viticulture takes it a step further and takes in to account the spiritual side of things, including running the vineyard and winery by lunar cycles. The grower sees his vineyard as a single living entity, promotes biodiversity and believes there are underlying natural forces governing all the stages of growth and production. A lot of biodynamic producers use only natural yeast, minimal or no sulphur and sometimes no filtration.

(N) NATURAL WINE has no true definable measure but the order of the day is absolute minimal intervention. The organically or biodynamically grown grapes travel from the vineyard to the winery, are crushed, gently put in a vat, fermentation takes place naturally, the wine settles and is then bottled. A return to how wines historically used to be made.

ORGANIC, BIODYNAMIC, NATURAL WINES

We are big fans of this movement within the wine industry, so have decided to make a feature out of these sometimes odd, occasionally hard to understand but frequently delicious vinous drops. In this day and age everyone understands what is meant by organic, but biodynamic viticulture takes things a few steps further. Vineyard practices are governed by lunar cycles, the grower believes the vineyard has a soul that needs nourishing. The winemaker eschews the use of laboratory prepared yeasts in favour of ones that occur naturally in the vineyard, the wines often have no fining or filtration and an absolute minimal use (if any) of sulphur at any stage of the wine making process.

The term 'natural wine' has no true definable measure but the order of the day is absolute minimal intervention. The organically or bio-dynamically grown grapes travel from the vineyard to the winery, are crushed, gently put in a vat, fermentation takes place naturally, the wine settles and is then bottled. This is a return to how wines historically used to be made. We believe that the resulting products offer the purest expression of the grape variety, soil type and climatic conditions of the vintage.

To help find them in the Curlew wine list we have marked (O) for Organic, (B) for Biodynamic, and (N) for Natural.

ORANGE WINES

These are white wines which are made like reds, in other words, the grape skins are in contact with the juice for a long period of time, yielding amazing amber coloured wines. And they taste so different! Thrillingly alive and nourishing with a texture that you could almost sink your teeth into. Best when decanted into a carafe not served too cold, the wines are always changing, giving something different in every glass. Can be drunk with boldly flavoured dishes and soft cheeses.

DE MARTINO VIEJAS TINAJAS MUSCAT, ITATA VALLEY, CHILE 2014 (O) (N)

42.00

This wine rescues an old tradition deeply rooted in rural Chile: winemaking using large earthenware jars called "Tinajas". The wine is aged on its skins for 6 months in Tinajas and is bottled unfiltered and unfining and with very low sulphur additions. Complex and intense with classic Muscat notes of grapes alongside aromas of preserved lemons, herbs and earth. The palate reflects the nose with a touch of tannin from the skins and wonderful minerality and drinkability.

PHEASANT'S TEARS, CHINURI, GEORGIA 2013 (O)(N)

45.00

Fermented in Georgian tradition in Qvevri 2000 litre Terracotta clay pots lined with beeswax, fully buried in the earth where the temperature stays even throughout the year. Light and crisp, 12% Chinuri offers a lightly floral nose with delicate passion fruit on the palate that rolls into lime at the finish.

(O) ORGANIC viticulture is when the grower concentrates more on growing a healthy vine, by developing nutritious soil and a balanced ecosystem without the use of artificial fertilizers and pesticides.

(B) BIODYNAMIC viticulture takes it a step further and takes in to account the spiritual side of things, including running the vineyard and winery by lunar cycles. HENRI BOURGEOIS SANCERRE 'LE M.D.' LOIRE, FRANCE 2015			55.00
Le M.D is a very steep south-east facing slope in Chavignol – M.D. stands for Mont Damné, literally "damned slope" because it is so difficult to harvest. Since the 11th century, noblemen would outbid one another just to possess a small parcel. During the harvest only the ripest grapes are hand-picked and carefully transported to the cellar where they are gently pressed to release their aromas.

Inky spicy wine with dried fruits character, especially spongy fig rolls, also suggestions of fresh tea and tobacco/menthol. This is real wine from the home of Malbec.

LES IMPRESSIONS, COTE DU ROUSSILLON VILLAGES, FRANCE 2010

A blend of Syrah, Grenache, Mourvèdre and Carignan grapes from vines between 25 and 75 years old. The nose is beguiling, with notes of dried fruits, treacle-toffee, Christmas cake and blackcurrants. Silky soft tannins and a long, powerful finish with a touch of liquorice on the end.

CHATEAUNEUF-DU-PAPE 'CUVEE DES SOMMELIERS', JACQUES MESTRE RHONE, FRANCE 2010

ST JOSEPH ROUGE, DOMAINE DE MIQUETTES (O) RHÔNE VALLEY, FRANCE 2014

70.00

Fermented in Tinajas (clay jars) that are buried in the ground as is found in Georgia, the wine is fermented using wild yeast and is bottled unfiltered, unfinned and with no added sulphur. It's masculine with powerful fruit such as plum skins and wild blackberries. The palate has concentrated fruit and stones, olives, and a bucketful of black pepper. This is not at all lean, but rather potent and the tannin structure is powerful while also being supple.

(O) ORGANIC viticulture is when the grower concentrates more on growing a healthy vine, by developing nutritious soil and a balanced ecosystem without the use of artificial fertilizers and pesticides.

(B) BIODYNAMIC viticulture takes it a step further and takes in to account the spiritual side of things, including running the vineyard and winery by lunar cycles. The grower sees his vineyard as a single living entity, promotes biodiversity and believes there are underlying natural forces governing all the stages of growth and production. A lot of biodynamic producers use only natural yeast, minimal or no sulphur and sometimes no filtration.

(N) NATURAL WINE has no true definable measure but the order of the day is absolute minimal intervention. The organically or biodynamically grown grapes travel from the vineyard to the winery, are crushed, gently put in a vat, fermentation takes place naturally, the wine settles and is then bottled. A return to how wines historically used to be made.
